- USGFC – statement on undocumented immigrants

As a starting point, to inform the discussion of any statement USGFC may choose to make about undocumented immigrants, I suggest the following:

- Education is a public good. It is a means of producing an educated electorate and a means of growing local and state economies. Universities should remove barriers for academically qualified students wherever possible.
- Where a university has the capacity to meet the needs of all citizens and legally documented immigrants and yet have further capacity to educate qualified students, it ought to be encouraged for those universities to lower barriers to higher education for those otherwise qualified students.
